Win Our Entire Spring 2014 Collection for Your Library at ALA!

Michael Perry. Jerry Apps. Freedom Summer. Banning DDT. The Wisconsin Historical Society Press's Spring 2014 titles feature some of the biggest authors and biggest history stories in America. A lucky ALA 2014 Midwinter Conference attendee can win one of each of the Society Press's ten Spring 2014 titles for their library by stopping by the Society Press booth (#1853) before 5 p.m. on Sunday, January 26.

Spring 2014 Collection books include:

- From the Top: Brief Transmissions from Tent Show Radio by New York Times Bestselling Author Michael Perry
- Risking Everything: A Freedom Summer Reader, edited by Michael Edmonds
- Banning DDT: How Citizen Activists from Wisconsin Led the Way by Bill Berry
- For Love and Money: Portraits of Wisconsin Family Businesses by Award-Winning Photographer Carl Corey
- The Bingo Queens of Oneida: How Two Moms Started Tribal Gaming in Wisconsin by Mike Hoelt
- Studying Wisconsin: The Life of Increase Lapham, Early Chronicler of Plants, Rocks, Rivers, Mounds and All Things Wisconsin by Martha Bergland and Paul G. Hayes
- Return to Wake Robin: One Cabin in the Heyday of Northwoods Retreats by Marnie Mammaing – New Audio Book edition featured on A Chapter A Day radio program.
- Cris Plata: From Fields to Stage/Del Campo al Escenario, a dual-language biography for young readers by Maia Surdam
- Electa Quinney: Stockbridge Teacher, a new biography for young readers by Karyn Saemann

The winner will also receive a copy of The Quiet Season: Remembering Country Winters by celebrated rural historian Jerry Apps, the subject of a nationally-syndicated public television documentary. A winner will be drawn and announced at 10 a.m. Monday, January 27. You need not be present to win.
